The Mute Minstrel. The Mule Minitel.
The Bakes fall white, and fast, and soft,
In a noisiess which from the vail aloft,
And sprend their mantle, wide and fair.
On earth's brown breast, through the darken'd air;
So reft the rose-bush looks and wan,
Methinks her blooming is all andone,
And leafless trees bend sad and low
Beneath their branches' crown of snow.

A robin paused in his flight too long;
In his frozen throat is a silent song,
And never more shall his dead heart beat
With his love of the Noriand, true and sweet.
Southward his wing'd mates have flown,
But the red-breast died at home, alone;
Through the bended boughs you may dimly see
A bird of snow in a cedar tree!

My life, dead bird, is the cedar tree.
And my heart in its branches is dead like thee;
Twas red as thy breast in its love and youth.
But the snow-fiskes fell on its trust and truth!
When the singers hie them, on happy wing,
To leafy arches in pomp of spring.
Their merry carols may mock the lute,
But thine and mine shall be chill'd and mute."

Learning from the paper that you are re-quested to publish the above lines, and having them in my possession, I send you a G. T. E. January 28, 1878.

[The above lines were copied by us last January from the Petersburg Index-Appeal. The author signed the name "Myrtle" to

The Glanders.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, January 28, 1878. Editors Dispatch: I feel it a public duty to warn your readers to look well to their horse and mule stock, to check the spread of glanders, and be careful that the good intended by Colonel Ruffin, in your issue of the 22d, and which has been spread by the January Planter and Farmer, and whilst I will not say Colonel Ruffin is in error, I feel sure I would not err if I were to state-at least not until this recipe of the late General Brandon was found—that the cure for glanders was unknown; and this may start quacks afresh, and full the fours and give a new impetus to horse-cheats, and it will spread stealthily to unknown points. It is astounding to know how good citizens may become demoralized, and will trade or have it done for them by others, and thus scatter the most deadly disease known to horse-flesh; that is, a disease that is sure sooner or later will kill, and should be avoided as the bite of a rattlesnake in the human family; and it is the more danger-ous because of the varied forms in which it may appear and the varied effect it has on animals till they finally die. My acquaintance with it in 1842 among our stage stock in Virginia, and in Alabama and Mississippi in 1855, and later in Texas, Arkansas, Missouri, and the Indian Territory, and alike fatal in those States, and first and last probably eighty to one hundred head of horses and mules, as well as in Virginia from the army stock, and its symptoms and results ended sooner or later in death, and I never knew a case to be cured. It is flattering at times to see apparent improvement for a little time; and it is astonishing how little it will seem to affect an animal, and how in a few weeks, or a month or more, it will kill; and the animal who introduced it may not scarcely show more than what the incendiary who trades or sells him calls distemper, and that it will soon pass away. I have been so frequently a sufferer for my companies in this "distemper" error and fraud it was my rule that no animal should be bought or traded for with symptoms of Don the night of the 22d instant, a ME-TOdistemper about it. I will not cumber your paper with more than to say that the Farrier-Book describes the symptoms; and there is a very valuable book by Professor John R. Page, of the University of Virginia, that should be in every horse-owners' hands in the country. It is the result of much labor and experience during NOTICE OF DISSOLUTION OF CO-PART the war, and tests made by a board of physicians at the Horse Infirmary at Lynchburg, of which Dr. Page was chief. I have read it with interest, and the whole horse-interest is under obligations to him for his minute details of this loathsome disease, from which man is not safe in handling such horses, and it will be easy to decide the horse should die; and it ought to be, if it is not, a criminal offence to part with stock so affected; and it is too bad to know how many otherwise good men will play the part of worse than an incendiary at the dead hour of night in parting with these firebrands to innocent parties, and too often to parties to be joint with them in profits and crime in scattering them at a distance among people who have not heard of the prevalence of this disease elsewhere near S. W. FICKLIN.

Another one of us is gone. At high noon on the 23d instant the bachelor King of Spain was wedded to the lovely daughter of the Duke de Montpensier. The ceremony was performed in the royal chapel of the Atocha, and all Madrid joined in the festivities. The marriage of a king is a rare ceremony-for one which amounts to so little; and the New York Herald signalizes the event by publishing a diagram of the occurrance. By means of this diagram we are enabled to get a very clear idea of the affair. The wedding occurred in the fifth column about one-third of the way down and about a dozen "ems" from the right-hand column-rule. From its position we should say that the royal chapel of the Atocha was a sort of "little church around the corner," so to speak. At the close of the ceremony the wedding procession moved towards the upper left-hand corner of the page and then turned sharply downward, describing an acute angle. This brought the procession into the second column, where an abrupt turn towards the top of the page was made and the company passed into the royal palace, entering at one of the gable ends .- Worcester Press.

While girls unquestionably have their uses in the economy of nature, and possess merits exclusively their own, it may be boldly asserted that they are totally unfit to pursue in company with young men the studies which constitute the curriculum of every respectable college. One of the earliest studies of the Freshman year is the art of getting the janitor's cow into the fourth story of the dormitory. This can be readily mastered by any young man of good abilities and habits of industry and perseverance; but between girls and cows there is a great gulf fixed. The girl, from her earliest youth, looks upon the cow as a ferocious beast, prone to keep young ladies in the air in positions fatal to the proper arrangement of the back hair. To suppose that three or four young lady students are capable of the complicated pushing and pulling necessary to induce a cow to climb several flights of stairs is to suppose that the natural feminine fear of cows can be eradicated by the mere process of matriculation. Thus we see that one of the very easiest of college studies is quite beyond the range of the female intellect.—New York Times.

Modern Conversation .- Young Green: "Hot, isn't it?" Young lady (tired of the subject): "So you said just now." Y. G. (nervously): "Yes, but don't you think it has got hotter?" Young lady gives Young Green up as a bad job .- Judy.

As they were about to quaff one of the party suddenly called out to another, "Hello, Dougherty; you drinking whiskey? Sure it was only yesterday ye towld me ye was a taytotler." "Well," said Mr. Dougherty, evidently somewhat disconcerted, "you'r right, Misther Kelly—it's quite right ye are. I am a taytotler, it's true; but I-I-1'm not a bigoted one! "-Virginia (Nev.)
